ARMY STUDIES ATTACK
ON AIR-BORNE INFECTIONS

Chanute Field, Ill.—Experiments conducted by the Commission of Air-borne Infections under the direction of the Surgeon General's office brought military and naval authorities to this post of the AAF Training command for a three day conference last week.

Tests with certain types of oil which, when applied to floors and blankets, trap dangerous airborne viruses and bacteria were made in search for a method to reduce diphtheria, influenza, scarlet fever, and streptococcal infections.

Heading the conference at Chanute Field were Col. Arthur H. Corliss, post surgeon, and Maj. Fred G. Garlock, sanitation corps medical inspector. Headquarters for the commission were set up at Chanute Field in 1941 with similar experiments being conducted over that period.

Members of the Boy Scout troop of the American Legion held their first meeting Monday evening in the Legion hall, with Scoutmaster Frank Kennedy, Jr., in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Heath attended services for Mrs. Heath's cousin, Detective Sergeant Arthur Opal, 39, of the Waukegan police force Tuesday afternoon in Waukegan. Sgt. Opal had just returned from Aurora, where he had gone Thursday to investigate a fire that had occurred in Montgomery in October.

WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUN'KIN

Car Misses Road, Hits Shed; 2 Escape Injury

Charles L. Anderson, 20, and Don Cunningham, 19, escaped serious injury when an automobile driven by Anderson missed a sharp curve on State Line road Saturday night around 10:30 o'clock and struck a shed and a garage alongside the road, on a farm operated by August Giebel and owned by C. F. Richards.

Members of the Giebel family, whose house is located across the road from the barn and implement sheds, were aroused by the sound of the impact and reached the scene just as the two youths were picked up by John and Carl Carlson, who brought them to Antioch.

Anderson, who sustained cuts about the head and bruises, was later removed to Victory Memorial hospital, but was able to return home early this week. Cunningham received injuries when he was riding, owned by Burt Anderson, was badly damaged, as were the garage and a light pickup truck which had been used by Giebel for hauling milk and which was at the time in the building. The car apparently struck the shed at an angle and careened off it to strike against the wall of the garage.

Electric Appliance "Swap" Campaign Brings Results

Idle electric household devices to the number of nearly 13,000 have been rejuvenated and put to work in northern Illinois towns outside Chicago since the appliance "swap" campaign was started almost a year ago by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Electric irons compose more than 30 percent of the total.

The drive started last December when the War Production board issued a nation-wide appeal that homes be searched for idle work-saving devices that could be turned over to war workers and others unable to purchase them due to wartime manufacturing restrictions.

Reports show that more than 4,000 electric irons have been taken in by dealers thus far. Toasters rank second with 1,795. Also high on the list of items swapped are radios, 1,232; vacuum cleaners, 1,083; lamps, 592; washers, 532, and hot plates, 377. Other appliances include numerous clocks, fans, heaters, refrigerators, ranges, ironers, roasters, food mixers, motors, percolators and coffee makers.

Charles Woltersdorf, 86, passes away in his sleep, apparently some time early Tuesday morning, at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Hattie Pacey of Wilmot, with whom he had resided during the past two years.

He was born in Germany in 1858 but came to this country and settled in Bassett, 56 years ago. His wife, Wilhelmina, preceded him in death six years ago. He afterward made his home for about 3 years with a son, Frank, in Kenosha, before moving to the Pacey residence.

Survivors also include another daughter, Mrs. Raymond Johnson, Chicago.

State Deputy Fire Marshal James Stearns was summoned to Gurnee Friday to investigate a barn fire. Stearns had just returned from Aurora, where he had gone Thursday to investigate a fire that had occurred in Montgomery in October.

We can stand the flies and the sand in our eyes,
The orders, the rumors, the truth and the lies,
The mosquitoes' swarm and the water war,
And the wards that reek of chloroform.
What takes our fight and makes throats tight
Are the letters somebody didn't write.

Rescue Squad Uses Searchlight to Aid Waukegan Fire Dept.

Local Squad and Volunteer Firemen Help Combat $120,000 Blaze Sun.

The Antioch Rescue squad and its mobile searchlight were called to Waukegan Sunday night at 12:45 o'clock to help the Waukegan fire department combat the blaze that damaged the three-story brick building occupied by the Sample Furniture company and the Western Tire and Auto Supply store at 202 South Geneva street to the estimated extent of $120,000.

Since electrical power in the vicinity of the building had been turned off because of the fire, the mobile light was of great value in illuminating the outer walls and interior sections and basements as the firemen sought to check the blaze.

Five members of the Antioch Volunteer Fire department accompanied the squad. Two fire companies from Great Lakes Naval Training center and the Gurnee, Zion and North Chicago fire departments helped battle the fire throughout the night. The Rescue squad remained at the scene until 7 a.m., but the fire department members returned here shortly after 3 a.m. Firemen who went from here included Clete Vos, Merrill Cunningham, L. R. Van Patten, Jr., Clarence Shultz and Richard Allner. Representing the Rescue squad were Einar Peterson, Herman Holbek, Walter I. Scott, William Bandt and Fred Yates.

Sunday morning the Rescue squad was called to Wadsworth, to use its oxygen equipment for a heart attack case.

At around 11:30 o'clock Saturday evening the squad was summoned by Dr. I. L. Breakstone to take Charles L. Anderson, who had been injured in an automobile accident, to Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan.

THE JOB IN THE PACIFIC IS STILL TERRIFIC!

The fight in the Pacific calls for a highly specialized type of equipment. B-29 bombers that cost $600,000 in War Bonds; M-4 tanks with bulldozer blades that cost $67,417; "alligators" that cost $30,000; millions upon millions of gallons of gasoline. We need more and costlier equipment than any war has ever called for. And that's the big reason for the 6th War Loan Drive. Just as long as a single Japanese aims a gun at our men—we must continue to buy War Bonds.

Do your full share now!

Once again you are asked to buy at least one extra $100 War Bond. Buy more if you possibly can. Not only is it for the final Victory—it's for your future. Sign up for extra War Bonds on the Payroll Plan. Welcome the Victory Volunteer when he or she calls at your home. Remember—the job in the Pacific is still terrific.

Jeep-Mounted GIs Rip Enemy

Brooklyn Cavalryman Says
'We Pickled Them Krauts'
In Race Through France.

WITH AMERICAN CAVALRY,
SOUTHEAST OF NANCY, FRANCE. —Mechanized American cavalrymen, largely from Brooklyn, the Bronx and New Jersey, described during a lull in "kraut picking" how they wiped out a German armored column of SS troops with Indian-style tactics.

This cavalry outfit has been in continuous contact with the Germans for 39 days, and sometimes has been 40 to 50 miles ahead of the main body of troops, even including the armored columns.

Instead of horses they are using jeeps with machine guns for advanced work. At the moment the youths in this patrol were talking, jeeps were racing around in the woods a few miles away, being used as bait to lure several 50-ton Tiger tanks out of the forest where they could be engaged by the heavier units.

"We Worship That Mug."

While most of the youths in this part of the cavalry detachment are from the metropolitan East, they are led by a "foreigner," young Lieut. Marvin Heuffner of Racine, Wis.

"And you can put it right down now that we worship that mug like a god," burst out Sgt. Joseph Garo of Raritan, N. J. "He just sits up there at the head, smoking a cigarette while 20-mm. shells fly around, paying no more attention than if they were bees."

The patrol had just come into the rain-swept woods for a rest. But they had not the time to start a fire before orders came sending them out again.

Not so many miles away lay the tangled wrecks of German machines, with scores of bodies of some prize SS troops.

"We just pickled them krauts," declared Pvt. Al Barone of 7708 New Utrecht avenue, Brooklyn.

"We saw them coming and let the first motorcyclist go by," Sergeant Garo said. "The motorcyclist waved the column on and then we let fly."

"I chased the cyclist in my jeep with a machine-gun and got him. Then our armored car knocked out the first vehicle, tying up the whole column."

Flee to the Woods.

Corp. Joseph Ferraro of 2526 Valentine avenue, New York City, said: "We opened up on one side of the German column and then the assault guns knocked out the rear vehicles, working methodically up to the front."

What Germans were left fled into the nearby woods.

The armored column circled the wood at high speed, firing on the Germans like Indians in Custer's last stand. The tactics proved good, for American casualties were one killed, against the killing and capturing of nearly 200 Germans.

Not all the actions, the Cavalry was engaged in were like that, however, as the group in the armored car found out in this heavily contested area the other day.

Their car was bracketed by shells and several were wounded. The driver, Corp. Casper Halt of Paterson, N. J., was hit in one leg, but he stayed at the wheel and tried to get the armored car back to safety by driving through a town. But a house was blown in ahead of them and blocked the roadway. The crew had to scatter. Corp. Bernard Glassman of 56 Wilson street, Brooklyn, carried his wounded companion through town under fire until they were picked up by a jeep.

Find Plastics In Human Blood

One Is Synthetic Membrane Or Skin Now Being Used In Treating Burns.

BOSTON.—Two new plastics have been made from the plasma of Red Cross blood donors by Harvard medical school's department of physical chemistry.

One is synthetic membrane or skin, a thin, elastic film which shows encouraging results in treating human burns. The other is a dark brown solid, nearly as hard when prepared as a human rib, which slowly softens when implanted in the body, with possibilities in medical use just beginning to be explored, says the New York Times.

Both are described in current medical reports which for the first time tell some of the story of one of the most remarkable chemical accomplishments of the war, the fractionation of human blood plasma in to some of its mysterious parts.

Previously announced were the albumin which the navy is using in the same way as whole plasma for the wounded, the measles serum used by all the military forces and now going into civilian medical practice, the fractions which stop bleeding of small vessels almost instantly, plastic films used in surgery to substitute for the hard lining of the brain called the dura, and substances the navy uses in blood typing.

Film Dries After Healing.

The plastic membrane or skin being used experimentally as a covering for burns allows healing as rapidly as by any other known method. This human plastic can be removed without pain or tearing of the burned surface. When healing is complete the plastic film becomes dry and falls off.

In this synthetic skin it is possible to incorporate the sulfas, penicillin, or other substances of local value in the healing of burns.

Already 20 of the parts of plasma, each having a different job in health, have been separated and concentrated. In addition the further divisions of some of these fractions include four hormones, two enzymes and antibodies against 14 different diseases.

When Dr. Edwin J. Cohn, head of the department of physical chemistry, described the possibilities of human plasma fractionation to the American Red Cross and to the bureau of medicine of the navy in 1940, the scientific exploration was essentially complete.

The development which has resulted in the building of seven unique plasma fractionation industrial plants in several parts of the United States has been carried out in collaboration with the navy under contract between the office of scientific research and development, and Harvard university.

It's a Big Task.

The staggering task of separating human blood plasma can be visualized if one imagines a human red blood corpuscle to be the size of the Harvard stadium. Remove the red and white corpuscles from the blood, and one has left the plasma, made of water and protein particles. The very biggest of these protein particles would be only the length of a man's walking stick in Harvard stadium. This would be a particle of fibrinogen, the protein which causes blood to clot and which is used in the new remedies for bleeding.

Yet these protein molecules comprise most of the varied parts of the ocean of life which is man's blood. They are, or they carry, his hormones, enzymes, and disease antibodies, and are responsible for electrical forces, osmotic pressures and hundreds of other properties which make up the riddle of living matter.

This is the job which the Harvard laboratory undertook because of war. Since Dr. Cohn had studied the proteins of plasma for many years he was asked by scientific authorities to see what might be done with animal blood for human transfusion.

Duties Slanders Seize Radios Taken by Germans

LONDON.—Proving the "while-the-cat's-away" adage, residents of the island of Schouwen-Duiveland in the Rhine-Meuse-Scheldt estuary, in occupied Holland, recently took advantage of a police get-together to recover hundreds of radio sets which had been confiscated from them nearly a year ago by German occupation authorities.

A Dutch underground paper reported the islanders seized the confiscated receiving sets, which had been stored in a schoolhouse, at a police social, attendance at which the Nazis had made compulsory for all island policemen.

Trench Mouth Disease

Cured by Penicillin

CHICAGO.—Cure of 15 cases of Vincent's disease ("Trench Mouth") with penicillin was reported in the Journal of the American Dental association.

In all cases, the article said, there was "prompt improvement" following varying methods of applying the anti-bacterial agent. None of the patients was permitted any form of mouth hygiene — rinses or tooth brushing.

Lights of New York by L. L. STEVENSON

Around the Town: Baritone Dick Byron, looking like the poet of the same name in a wide-collared shirt, debarking from an early morning commuters' train at the Penn station with a book of love lyrics clutched under his arm—from bed to verse? . . . Jane Pickens, a cool looking lady with a warm heart, dropping a large bill into a war relief till at Radio City, then absent-mindedly jaywalking across Fifth avenue and being pursued by two kinds of whistles—police and wolf.

. . . Sultry Kate-Ellen Murtah, in a flame-colored dress, giving the wolves at Leon & Eddie's a fine case of heat prostration. . . . Gloria Norde, the "Skating Vanities" star, shaking off a couple of would-be gay blades outside the Gay Blades as she dashed inside for rehearsal. . . . Paul Whiteman, whose forte is the fiddle, pricing pianos on Fifty-seventh street and giving out with a superb rendition of "Chopsticks."

Craft Notes: Jane Deering can thank the power of the press for reuniting her with her oldest friend. While doing the starring role in "Sally" down Dallas, a Dallas newspaper published Jane's picture. WAVE Hetha Brown saw it and immediately got in touch with her. The girls, who played together, as kids in Philadelphia, hadn't seen one another since kindergarten days. . . . Lew Sherwood, who is featured with Nat Brandwynne's orchestra at the Waldorf-Astoria's Starlight roof, is a sextuplet threat man. Sherwood plays the trumpet and mellophone, sings ballads and comedy songs, does arrangements and serves as orchestra manager—and to date, he hasn't had a single nervous breakdown.

Faces and Places: Maj. George Fielding Elliot executing a brilliant flanking movement on a steak at the Cafe Pierre . . . Stanley Melba, the Cotillion Room's Latin from Manhattan, making his orchestra sound even more authentic with a new percussion instrument—namely, a 10-cent toy washboard. . . . Diana, glamorous chirognomist—sure, she is the property of the wardrobe mistress who parks her pet with Miss Niesen, while she goes about her nightly chores.

This and That: The Palisades Amusement park fire caused the cancellation of the seventh annual "Mrs. America" beauty contest. Plans are under way to hold this pulchritude tourney, for married women exclusively, in Florida this winter. . . . The outstanding fur trapper in New Jersey will be given a war bond by I. J. Fox at the state fair in Trenton. Bet you never knew there were fur trappers in Jersey. Well, there are hundreds of 'em. . . . Arthur Schwartz, newly appointed state campaign manager for Dewey, has been written up a lot lately but it hasn't been revealed that he's an amateur magician. He does card tricks with the finesse of a pro.

Here and There: On Broadway, Maestro Vincent Lopez passing the Cafe Zanzibar hurriedly without giving it a single glance. The Zanzibar, which has had more lives (and names) under various managements than a cat is supposed to have, is a Lopez superstition; he won't go into the room; doesn't even want to discuss it—because the second version of his once famed Casa Lopez was housed there and during its existence, brought the bandleader a veritable deluge of difficulties, annoyances and heartaches. . . . Sergt. William C. Estler entraining for Keesler Field, Miss., after fortnight in New York. Before entering the air forces in the winter of 1943, Estler, a native of Huntington, W. Va., was a newspaper man, his column of social chatter, titled "William Tell," having been widely read in the Virginias.

Addenda: Entering the Rockefeller Apartments, Corp. William H. Costello II, who is the guest of H. Sewall Bradley. Corp. Costello, known on the stage as Bill Castle (he introduced Cole Porter's "Begin the Beguine" in "Jubilee" with Mary Boland a few seasons back) is here on furlough from the Army and Navy General Hospital in Hot Springs, Ark., where he is convalescing, following a year with a hospital unit in European and African war theaters.

"Sometimes letters are useless in trying to express one's thoughts. This seems to be my case. For some time now I've seated myself at the desk with pen in hand intending to write to you, but found I was at a loss for words. I believe I've put it off long enough."

"However, in that length of time which I have been away from home, I couldn't feel as if I were altogether absent. There was a link there somewhere, linking me to events and happenings back home that otherwise I wouldn't have known of. That link, as you might know, is a home town paper.

"Having lived in Antioch all my life, I grew up with an everlasting respect and admiration for Mr. Gaston. Consequently I respected his paper. I actually grew proud of the Antioch News. I find no greater enjoyment in reading a paper than I do in yours."

V—

"Why isn't Joe getting my mail regularly?" Postmaster Roy I. Kufak passes on the navy mail service's answer to that question, as quoted below from navy department leaflet—

"For someone like Mrs. Smith who undoubtedly has never been outside of the United States, and probably resides in a city having two or three mail deliveries a day, the answer is: mail is definitely not regular here." But when you consider that this ship is only one of hundreds operating in an area covered with jungle and in which there is no commercial transportation whatsoever; no city or even town of any size, where a 'post office' consists of a native hut or a tent in the jungle, and particularly a 'forward' area where operations against the enemy are continually in progress, and where it is not possible or practical for the various task force commanders to keep the various 'post offices' currently advised as to the exact locations of the hundreds of ships in the area, one could not help but say that it is nothing short of amazing that mail deliveries are accomplished as often as they are."

(Ed. Note — Today's issue of the News is in a sense an anniversary issue, since it was just a year ago on this date that H. B. Gaston passed away. The sending of the paper to men in the service from this region was begun by him shortly after inauguration of the selective service program on Oct. 16, 1940. There were at first only 2 or 3 names on the list. There were 546 in October, and more have been added since that time.

When the list reached 230 names in November, 1942, Antioch American Legion post began to underwrite part of the cost of sending papers to those in service, and has continued to share the expenses and to assist in keeping the mailing list up to date since that time. Members of the Legion auxiliary and other women of the community have helped to prepare the individual mailing wrappers and to wrap the paper on press day.

There's a Gap in Our Post-War Planning

Quite a lot has been said about post-war planning, in the way of projects such as new roads, new buildings, and so on; there has been some discussion about the providing of jobs for our returning servicemen; plans are already underway or in contemplation to provide educational opportunities for those who desire them and to provide specialized care and training for those handicapped by disabilities received in the service of their country.

But we have yet to hear one word mentioned about safeguards against the horde of petty racketeers who, in one way or another, are beginning to get their eager hands on the money received by the men to tide them over for a time after their release from the service until they have completed their adjustment to civilian life.

In addition to their mustering-out pay, many of these men have drawn very little of their pay while overseas, where there was little on which they could spend it, and some of them have several hundred dollars saved up. This makes a very tidy little sum, indeed, and is quite a lure for those whose honesty is a bit on the shady side and whose pocketbooks are more dear to them than their ethics.

If there is anything lower than this form of a "sharpener" we have yet to see it—and we have on occasion observed some pretty low specimens.

Many of the men now being released have been in the service for some time. Many of them have been in action. They have faced danger, loneliness, monotony, hardship, and frequently, death or disability. The value of money and other earthly possessions has been looked upon by them from a different perspective from that in which it is generally viewed in civilian life. Their food, clothing and lodging, their equipment and weapons, were supposed to be provided for them. They were taught to obey orders and to have implicit trust in their comrades. Life followed a different routine and had other values than those in what we are pleased to call "normal" living.

Many of them are recovering from great physical or nervous fatigue, having been under considerable strain or heavy responsibility for long periods.

All of these men face a certain period of adjustment. Some may bridge the gap, perhaps, in hours; others in days, weeks or even months. Some of them are older men who will fall back into the lives and the work they have known before going away to war. Many of them are very young—even, in many cases, under 21, although they have served their country faithfully and well as fighting men and are not now disposed to be treated as children.

They have served their country as fighting men and now are about to begin another difficult and tedious task—that of serving it as civilians.

They certainly aren't going to be helped to get a good start in this new task if conscienceless petty racketeers are permitted to fleece them of their little accumulated funds under the guise of providing a "good time."

Sure, we want our returning boys to have a good time. BUT WE DON'T LIKE TO SEE THEM BEING GYPPED. It isn't justice, it isn't being fair to them—and it isn't going to do them or their country any good!

Many of these young men seem older than their years because of their war experience—but they're not. We already have laws that will help to protect those who are still under age, and elected officials who are paid to enforce these laws.

There's been a lot said about the material side of post-war planning. What about the human side?

We know that the majority of our veterans can pretty well take care of themselves. But let's see that these men—and particularly the younger ones—at least get a "decent break!"

For a Sensible Tax Policy

A recent survey in New York, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago which revealed a scramble of veterans, war workers and job holders to "get into business" for themselves carries a lesson which should be marked well by the men who make our tax policies.

Here are new enterprises clamoring to be born, to be given a chance for healthy expansion from small businesses into bigger ones. Here are energetic Americans, wanting to invest their savings in production, profit-building, job-creating new business.

Yet present tax laws actually seem to dare these courageous entrepreneurs to get started. We impose the same burden of taxes on new business that we imposed on established concerns. We tax away the reserves that would insure future risk-taking and growth.

Men and women who have courage and know-how to initiate new enterprises are as important to this country as our natural resources. They should be given every encouragement, granted every aid to profitable growth. In the business they start today—the machine shops and meat markets, woodworking plants and waffle bars—lies the opportunity for all of us to "earn more, buy more and have more."

"Mary and I were just saying, Judge, how lucky we are here in America that we have so many natural resources to help win the war."

"That's right, Jim. When war broke out we had oil, we had steel, we had food, lumber, aluminum... practically everything we needed. There's one thing we didn't have... rubber. The enemy had that."

"But that didn't bother us for long. Soon American brains and industry had synthetic rubber by the tons rolling out of plants. That filled a critical need... you can't win a war without rubber."

"I was very much interested the other day in reading a statement made by a high government official on synthetic rubber. In it he said 'It is fair to regard the rubber manufactured to date as being almost solely the product of the beverage distilling industry.'

"He also said that, in his estimation, the tremendous contribution of distillers' industrial alcohol to the synthetic rubber program had not received the recognition which it deserves."

"We certainly learned something today, didn't we Mary?"

Smart Farmers are saying, "I'll take my Fertilizer now!"

"I used to wait until spring to buy my fertilizer. But times have changed! Today there is a shortage of labor for handling deliveries; potash and phosphates are in greater demand than available supplies can take care of. Every farmer will want to step up yields again next year. I know, from long experience, that the best way to do this is with ANTIQUE MLG. CO. SOIL BUILDERS. I've seen how it increased yields of corn selected year after year for National and State Corn Husking Contests. It's my first choice among fertilizers."

"No one can tell what delays or other shortages we may have this spring. I am changing my buying habits and getting ANTIQUE MILLING CO.'s fertilizer NOW."

Antioch Milling Company Is Ready for You

We can supply you with 3-12-12 for Dec. 1944 delivery.

It's a wise farmer who takes his spring fertilizer NOW. Shortage of hands for shipping, trucking—combined with uncertainty of product restrictions, warrant storing spring fertilizer on the farm. Our Fertilizer in moisture-resisting 80-lb. Handiwrap paper bags is easy to handle and easy to store. Don't wait and hope to get it in the spring. Take your fertilizer NOW and avoid delays or disappointment when you are ready for planting. We suggest your calling on us NOW.

The Lake Villa P. T. A. card party held in the school gymnasium recently was a huge success. It was under the direction of Mrs. William Gallagher, Mrs. Earl Hucker and Mrs. Niel Riedel. The gym was decorated in a fall color scheme. Special prizes were won by Mrs. Alice Meyer, Billy Hucker and Clifford Bartlett. Prizes at cards were awarded to the following: Pinochle, Dorothy Verjinsky, Anna Nader, Charles Britton, Minnie Dahlke, Everett Galiger, William Gallagher; in 500—Mildred Hucker, Helen Fish, Mrs. John Dietz, Mrs. Philip Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blumenschein. Bridge—Oliver Martin. Refreshments were served buffet style at beautifully decorated tables.

The P. T. A. will hold a meeting at the school Monday evening, Nov. 20. After a short business meeting, Dr. Shapiro of Fox Lake, the school physician, will give a talk on Mental Diseases. All parents are urged to attend.

Sea Turtles

As compared with an estimated annual take of 100,000 pounds of fresh water species, the catch of sea turtles, consisting of the green, loggerhead, and hawksbill turtles, amounts to some 250,000 pounds. The diamond back terrapin, an Atlantic coast form highly prized as food, was nearly exterminated by relentless hunting half a century or more ago but is now being restored, largely as a result of propagation by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service at its Beaufort, N. C., station.

Oil Locks

Periodic oiling lengthens the life of any good lock. One way is to dip the key in oil before inserting. Powdered graphite also is a good lubricant, especially desirable for locks exposed to freezing weather.
